

NetObjects Fusion 3 For Dummies

The growth explosion of the Web has opened an entire arena for individuals and companies to display their information. In order to ensure that a message is seen however, a Web site has to be dynamic and interactive. This text describes NetObjects Fusion, which provides a simple answer because it uses a simple drag-and-drop system of Web page building. Web site developers usually come from the ranks of desktop publishers, marketing professionals or customer service representatives. This changing group of developers should find a non-technical, plain English explanation of Web page building useful.
