

This Bank Robbers Life: The Life and Fast Times of Patrick Paddy Mitchell

At last! The true story of North America's most famous, most successful and most likable bank robber of our time. You've seen him featured on many TV shows like America's Most Wanted, Unsolved Mysteries, Street Stories with Ed Bradley, Amazing Capers, The Fifth Estate, NBC Dateline and Court TV. You've read about him in two full-length books, in countless newspaper and magazine articles and on the Web. You may even have seen him portrayed in a Hollywood movie or two. As Paddy Mitchell will tell you, Nobody's gotten the story right yet. Now, finally, Paddy tells his own story. And what a story it is! From a million dollar gold heist to dozens of bank robberies to prison escapes, and even an occasional love story. Some of it will make you laugh, some of it will make you cry. This book may well be the best true crime autobiography ever written.

Visit Paddy's website at paddymitchell.wordpress.com for more information about his books or to leave comments or reviews. Paddy, you should have titled this book: All You Ever Wanted to Know About Robbing Banks (but didn't know who to ask). Drew Blanton (convicted bank robber, Oklahoma City) The most accurate depiction of the lifestyle you will ever read...from one of the best. Gary Settle (convicted bank robber, Florida) Move over Willie Sutton. Make room for Paddy Mitchell, eminent bank robber of the 70s, 80s and 90s, who robbed scores of banks because that was where the money was. Mike Hyde (The Bridges Bandit, San Diego) The High Life and Fast Times, the book gives you the feeling of life as a successful bank robber. Bobby King Before I read your book I never realized that bank robbery could be so safe for the victims; nor could it be so exciting and profitable. Thanks Paddy. Tracy Jackson (convicted postal robber, North Carolina) True art is characterized by an irresistible urge in the creative artist. I can feel this urge in the life story of Patrick Mitchell. Ray Lewis Bowman (Trench Coat bandit, Kansas City)
