

Bush Haikus - Simple Poems for a Simple Presidency

BUSH HAIKUS takes a humorous look at the last eight years as a Democrat living under the Bush Administration. BUSH HAIKUS make light of the many shortcomings and ironies of the Bush Administration, Democrats, and current events. Neil Glick's irreverent look at American politics shines the light on government in all its glory, complete with conflict, humor, hypocrisy and tragedy. These haikus, which range from Weapons of Mass Destruction to Bush's daughters; and from Clinton to the war in Iraq, explore the stories we experienced everyday in the news for eight years; to the lives we lived under George W. Bush.-----Neil Glick spent 15 years working in the political arena. Working throughout Washington DC, from the US Senate to Federal and local government, he is currently as a five term elected official in the District of Columbia Government. Prior to his run for office, Glick lived in Russia from 1993-1997. His experience gives Haikus for Democrats a witty and insightful look at the challenges Democrats, and all voters face in trying to find some answers in the crazy 8 years of George Bush. Lest we forget how bad and corrupt it really was. Neil Glick has been seen on The Today Show, NBC Nightly News, numerous local television interviews, RTR Television (Russian national television), and in stories ranging from The Washington Post, The New York Times, Kiplingers, The Washington Times, The Moscow Times, The Moscow Tribune, Connections magazine and the Russian edition of Newsweek.
