Excerpt from In Memory of John F. Meginness, Journalist and Historian: July 16, 1827 November 11, 1899 The death of John F. Meginness occurred at Williamsport, Pa., on Saturday night, November 11, 1899, suddenly and without a moments warning. He had spent the day in Harrisburg, returning on a late train. It was after eleven o'clock when he entered his home, bearing a package of books, among the number being a handsome volume, of his own creation, recounting the incidents of his Golden Wedding celebration, which occurred on the 25th of October previous. While exhibiting this book to his wife and daughter-in-law the summons came, and he sank to the floor dead. At the instant of death he was directing attention to the features of the book. Look at the title page, he said, pointing to the time-stained marriage certificate. These were his last words. The following chapters tell the story of his life.
